"Trinity Bank was Built for Times Like These."

We are pleased to provide this brief monthly update to inform you about your bank's safety and to address the recent confusion in the banking world. We will continue to keep you updated monthly.

Liquidity - As of $1 / 31 / 2024$, cash at the Federal Reserve Bank or "Overnight Money" has decreased as expected this time of year to $$ 31,091,000$.

In addition, we could sell $$ 82,365,000$ in securities with NO reduction in Capital or impact to Net Income.

Therefore, we could create liquidity (to fund deposit withdrawals) of $$ 113,456,000$ with no impact to Capital or Net Income. This would represent over $26 \%$ of our total deposits.

Additional Liquidity - We could sell our entire unpledged bond portfolio, at current prices, to generate an additional $$ 43,332,000$ in liquidity.

The sale would generate only a $($ 3,010,000)$ reduction in the bank's Net Income. In this worstcase scenario, the bank would remain profitable and well above the minimum capital requirements.

We also have access to $$ 35,500,000$ in the form of three lines of credit we maintain with the Fed as well as two other financial institutions. Currently, we have $$ 14,745,000$ in bonds pledged to the Fed as collateral for our line of credit which has a zero balance.

This would create total liquidity of $$ 192,288,000$ that would represent over $45 \%$ of our total deposits.

Capital increased slightly due to the $$ 667,841$ unaudited Net Income the bank produced in January.

Deposits have remained steady at $$ 426,885,000$.

Trinity Bank is built for difficult times, and we've seen them before. But unlike some banks, we are well positioned for them and anticipate picking up new relationships as other banks are forced to tighten their lending standards.
